

MR. KISHOR SURTI

I have known Mr. Kishor Surti for many years now as a gentleman and studious by nature in all what he does. Mr. Surti himself is a qualified printing technologist and management person. I had an opportunity to work closely with him during his tenure as a general manager of the Mumbai Municipal Press (the biggest municipal corporation in India). I was appointed to conduct the technical audit of the press. I noticed that Mr. Surti's expert capability in technical management of the press that very few possess. Further, after many decades of technical stagnation at the municipal press, during his tenure he initiated press modernization project and started implementation that continues even after his retirement from the press. Realising the importance of well-trained human resources, for the first time in municipal press history, he appointed young printing graduates in senior position and gave them a free hand in development of the press. After retirement, Mr. Surti being an active person is giving benefit of his experience to the industry at large with some successful projects to his credit. I am very happy and proud of his achievements and wish him a very accomplished and long life serving the cause of print and print related industries.

KIRAN P. PRAYAGI